To Whom It Might Concern: XM's traffic and weather are a very important service to us in the trucking industry. We can set a pre-set on our radios for cities we'll be traveling thru later in the day and are able to get the traffic for those cities as we approach them. This is much more safe than "scanning" the radio hoping to stumble on a traffic alert. With California trying to pass a law that would get you traffic citated for ajusting your radio while moving, (because of safty concerns), it becomes an even more nessissary tool for this trade, who wants to be beside a truck that the drivers attention is devirted while trying to find a traffic report on either the AM or FM side of his radio? How many times will he (she) have to scan before they find a suitable station only to have it fade out The real awnser to this is to let XM continue to offer this very needed service. Thank You for your time. Marty Weger
